Viewpoint for Investors

Economic Numbers:

- > The U.S. economy expanded at an annualized 6.7% rate in the second quarter, according to data from the Bureau of Economic Analysis. Personal consumption, the largest contribution to GDP, increased at an annualized rate of 12.0%, one of the largest gains in decades. Economists currently expect growth to progress as the U.S. economy continues to reopen.
- > Prior to the outbreak of COVID-19, the U.S. economy was experiencing positive momentum driven by the easing of trade tensions, improvements in manufacturing, and strength in the housing sector. The housing and manufacturing sectors in particular have been experiencing renewed strength in recent months.
- > While the pace of the domestic economic recovery is uncertain, our view remains that the domestic recession of 2020 is over. The combination of the domestic healthcare response, Federal Reserve monetary action, Government fiscal initiatives, and the continued reopening of commerce will lead to the resumption of economic growth in 2021 and beyond.

Global Economic Update:

- > The COVID-19 pandemic has continued to have a major impact on life across the globe, and therefore economic activity, employment, and corporate earnings. Governments around the world are beginning to tighten COVID-19 related guidelines as global cases mount.
- > Lingering COVID-19 economic restrictions, vaccine distribution and administration data, government fiscal stimulus measures, central bank policy actions, geopolitical tensions, and inflation measures are topics that the Investment Management Group is monitoring.

Equity Market Comments

- > Global equities were negative in September as investors battled concerns about inflation, COVID-19 and China. Inflation concerns continued to dominate investment themes in September, amid disrupted supply chains and a tightening labor market, with market participants debating whether inflationary factors will prove transitory.
- > Forward-looking equity markets will continue to discount a revival of prospective economic growth post COVID-19 where accommodative monetary and fiscal policy will act as supportive tailwinds, the cost of capital remains low, and inflation is benign.

Investment Policy Statements Overview

Investment Policy Statements are documents that help to create and sustain successful investing relationships.

Background

We believe that understanding a client's intent is imperative to successful investing. We also believe that a successful investment relationship relies on a shared vision of appropriate expectations – for returns, risk, and the possibility of loss. As a result we want our clients to be familiar with the foundation of the bank's approach to investing their money. The purpose of this document is to outline that foundation and to appropriately engage you in the process.

Investment Approach

The bank has a well-articulated investment process that is intended to generate outcomes that are consistent with general, long-term account objectives. The elements of this process include, but are not limited to:

- Broad diversification that includes the use of multiple asset classes.
- Global orientation to take advantage of the opportunity set across the world.
- Rigorous due diligence in selecting investments for client portfolios.

Client Considerations

In order for the bank to address its responsibilities in managing a client's account(s), the bank and the client should discuss relevant circumstances sufficiently for the bank to make an informed set of decisions concerning the appropriate investment approach for the client. These considerations include, but are not limited to:

- Liquidity
- Reasonable return expectations
- Income
- Time frame
- Taxes
- Legal/Regulatory considerations
- Risk Tolerance

Asset Allocation and Security Selection

The bank has a process for asset allocation which involves establishment of longer-term targets and ranges for asset classes which are tied to return expectations and risk - and a shorter term process for tactical adjustments as market conditions warrant. Unless specified elsewhere, it is the responsibility of the bank to determine the appropriate asset allocation for each account in pursuit of achieving client-specific, customized solutions, including any deviations from standard targets and/or ranges.

In order to provide flexibility in pursuing agreed upon results, the bank may employ a variety of financial instruments, securities, products, or investment vehicles. In its fiduciary role, the bank will perform due diligence on and approve investments selected for client portfolios. Unless otherwise specified in this Investment Policy Statement, or other governing documents, the bank will have responsibility for selection of investments.

Please review the attached Investment Policy Statement(s) and discuss with us any points you believe need refinement.
